

ANTIQUITIES
& ANCIENT ART
26 - 28 May 2022

May 2022 Auction

Welcome to our second ancient art, antiquities and coin auction of 2022. As usual, the viewing of the objects, our Champagne reception, and the first day of the auction will be held in the Crystal Room in the heart of London's Mayfair. We look forward to welcoming our customers once again to the prestigious May Fair Hotel.

Ancient antiquities recently made international headlines when a 1st century Roman bronze statue of Bacchus as a child made its way back to the Musée du Pays Châtillonnais in France. The statue was stolen in December 1973 and TimeLine Auctions is proud to have been involved in its successful return and to have worked together with the famed Dutch art detective, Arthur Brand. Further details regarding this endeavour can be found on the previous news item. We are pleased to announce that Arthur Brand will be a guest at our Champagne reception on 23rd May. His presentation will outline the circumstances of the statue's return and the central importance of his ongoing efforts to recover stolen art.

In addition, Dr Garrett Ryan has kindly agreed to travel from Chicago to give a short presentation on 'Nightlife in Ancient Rome'. Dr Garrett Ryan holds a PhD in Greek and Roman History from the University of Michigan and has a wealth of experience teaching in the history and classics departments of several universities. He will be available to answer questions on the subject of nightlife in ancient Rome and his ever popular YouTube channel 'Toldinstone'. He will also be available to sign copies of his popular book 'Naked Statues, Fat Gladiators, and War Elephants'.

The objects in this sale have been inspected and vetted in person by a committee of more than a dozen archaeologists, experts and specialists, including several professionals from other European countries. The majority of the team met on 4th and 5th April 2022 to examine the array of objects we have on offer. I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Richard Falkiner on becoming our senior consultant, after having completed 10 years of consulting and vetting for us. We also welcome science-based consultant Ivor Goro to our vetting team.

The February sale was another resounding success with over 87% of lots being sold. I am also happy to report that the non-profit projects we support, both Wildwinds.com and the Harwich Museum, are still exceptionally popular.

In addition, we have launched a new feature enabling viewers to 'like' lots that they find particularly interesting, and we plan to collate this data into a league table which we believe our clients will find useful.

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Raffaele D'Amato
(Head of Antiquities)

The Return of Young Bacchus

When I started working full time for TimeLine back in 2020, I decided that one of my main goals was to support my team to continue to improve the process of identifying possibly stolen or looted items in the art market. Our hard work was rewarded at the beginning of this year, when we played an instrumental part in the return of the statue of a young Bacchus, stolen from Musée du Pays Châtillonnais in December 1973. Witnessing the joy of Catherine Monnet, director of the museum, when she received the 1st century Gallo-Roman masterpiece back, was everything that I had hoped to achieve.

The Bacchus statue was stolen along with five thousand Roman coins by art thieves and was believed to have been lost forever. The statue is uncommon and once ornamented a beautiful villa at Vertillum (modern Vertault in the Côte-d'Or). Vertillum was a centre of production for working copper-based alloys, but it is most probable that the statue was produced in Anatolia or Roman Egypt. Excavations of the site began in 1846 and uncovered an array of material, including the magnificent statuette of Bacchus, which was discovered in 1894. Bacchus is depicted nude except for the panther skin wrapped around his torso. His left hand is elegantly raised to hold a staff and the right hand would have originally held a bunch of fruit (as shown in the text of Reinach, p.125, who published it in a drawing in his monumental work Repertoire de la statuaire Grecque et Romaine, vol. II, 1908). The statue was among the fifty artworks selected to represent the best of French artist heritage for a Paris exhibition in 1937. The statue is rare, since not many of this typology have been found worldwide, and is undoubtedly one of the most important Roman statues found in France.

The recovery was made possible by the hard work of the brilliant detective Arthur Brand, who specialises in thefts of artworks. He was initially contacted by a private collector, who had been offered the piece, to get advice on the artefact. Mr Brand was able to trace back the provenance and discovered photos from 1927 of the statue in an archaeological depot in France. All the parties involved were willing to collaborate with the restitution of the statue and TimeLine Auctions was contacted to help to fund the considerable amount required by French law to pay the individual returning the object. We were delighted to be able to assist and the statue finally arrived back home to the Musée du Pays Châtillonnais on the 1st February 2022.

For coins that have been authenticated, graded and encapsulated ('slabbed') by an independent grading company, no guarantee of any kind is offered by TimeLine.
